Syannah
SINGER / SONGWRITER

Project description

Syannah sees the content of her lyrics as the starting point for creating new music. For the Austrian singer-songwriter, this approach is essential. "Music helps me to give space to everything that is going on inside me and to express myself." The strong urge for self-reflection and personal development are reflected in her songs. She gives expression to strong feelings and intense moments through words and melodies. The Viennese musician shares these personal stories, thoughts and insights in acoustic-tinged ballads and catchy pop songs mixed with country, soft rock and indie elements.

Syannah wants to encourage people with her music to stay true to themselves and follow their own heart's path. In her songs, she processes her experiences, which are not infrequently accompanied by self-doubt and inner insecurities. "Never being good enough anyway" is a conviction that the singer carried within herself for a long time before she took to the stage. Even as a child, it kept her from continuing her guitar lessons.

It took quite a bit of experience and realization to then, ten years later, pursue her long-awaited desire to play guitar and write songs. "I wanted to fulfill my inner child's dream, which I could not live at that time".

And thus, since then, she also carries one of her most important aha experiences to the outside world: "It's not about being perfect, it's about being ourselves," the musician is convinced and knows that it's never too late to pursue your own dreams.

Syannah creates an intimate atmosphere through her stories in her live performances and encourages listening and "feeling" with personal access and honesty. Self-awareness, strong feelings and inspiring messages are her trademarks and together, these elements make her music and performance a unique experience.

Press Text

Life gives every person countless moments paired with the most diverse feelings and experiences. The Austrian musician Syannah picks up these moments and tells about them in her songs. She opens her heart in music and expresses all her insights and emotions through lyrics and melodies. Syannah invites listeners into her soul during her performances and shares her stories with them. The personal approach, her openness and the emotions involved are palpable in every note of her voice. Fluently, the moderations merge into the chords and thoughts reverberate in the room.

Her path so far has already led the Viennese musician to many stages in Austria and Germany. Among them well-known events like the Donauinselfest and the Hafen Open Air in Vienna or festivals and events in Hamburg, Munich, Passau and Berlin.

Syannah and her music have also made it into WARDA magazine, district newspapers and some of her songs can be heard worldwide on various online and regional radio stations.
